

The Analysis of the Regional Education Development Comparing in China

Wang Shanmai

Capital Institute of Economics of Education, Beijing Normal University

wangshanmai@vip.sina.com

Abstract

The paper based on the reality in China, in the condition of data available, designed the education development index which is made up education opportunity, education inputs and education equality. Then the author compared the education development level between the 31 province in China Mainland in 2003, 2007 and 2009 respectively by using the index and basing on the official statistics, analyzed the reasons which causing the difference of the regional education development level, supplied the valuable measuring tool to evaluate the difference of the regional education development.